

Common Hackberry

(Seedlings are Superstock 7"-9")
60' to 100' tall, Common Hackberry is a fast growing tree. The gray bark is distinctive with its corky, bumpy ridges. Small green flowers in the spring give way to an abundance of orange to purplish, sweet, cherry-like fruits that are devoured by the birds. Recommended for windbreaks and shelterbelts, wildlife plantings, revegetation disturbed sites. Also makes a wonderful shade tree because of its fast growth and low water use. This tree is extremely drought and cold tolerant, long-lived, and highly adaptable to many adverse soil conditions.
